Cycle Route 11: Newboro – Narrows Lock Tour

Km 11.3 (44° 41.872'N. 76° 23.329'W.) Turn Right (Easterly) onto North Shore Rd., A winding loose-surface road among marshes and granite outcrops of the Westport Mountain pluton. typical landscape of the rugged Canadian Shield. Overlook Upper Rideau Lake from the high side of the Rideau Lakes Fault-line. Few farmsteads have survived and thrived on pockets of rich humic soils settled by Irish fleeing the Famine. Abandoned farmland is being reclaimed by mixed forest, ideal habitat for white-tailed deer, red-tailed hawks and beavers.

Km. 20.7 (44° 43.422'N. 76° 18.904'W.) Turn Right (Southerly) onto Merkley Rd. (Loose surf.)

Km. 21.0 (44° 43.371'N. 76° 18.720'W.) At STOP Sign at “T”, go straight (Southerly). Be sure your bicycle is within the “5 Ton limit” of the bridge ahead. Proceed on County Rd. 14 - Narrows Lock Road. Hard surfaced road.

Km. 23.8 (44° 42.147'N. 76° 17.736'W.) Narrows Lock. As you cross the bridge and causeway, Upper Rideau Lake is to your right (west) and Big Rideau Lake to your left (east). In order to connect the Rideau Basin with the Catarqui Basin and establish a military supply route from the Ottawa River to Lake Ontario and Kingston, the original Rideau Lake was divided here at the Narrows and the Upper Rideau raised over 1 metre in order to fill the channel you saw at Newboro earlier. A fortification / block house was built here to defend this strategic site here in the Keystone of the Rideau Corridor from American attack.

Here, you are also crossing the Rideau Lakes Fault Line, especially evident in the cliffed north shore of the Upper Rideau between the Canadian Shield to your north and the St. Lawrence plain to your south.

Opening the gate at Narrows Lock into the realm of Big Rideau Lake

Km. 27.2 (44° 40.551'N. 76° 16.835'W.) Turn Right (Westerly) onto McCann Rd. toward Newboro. Pass a typical cheddar cheese factory with its typical “weighing-in stand” where local farmers once brought their cans of milk early each morning. This was one of 44 such cheese factories that once boomed here in the north of Leeds County with its ideal climate and grasses for producing high-quality milk.

Cross Little Rideau Lake Road.

Km. 30.3 (44° 39.434'N. 76° 18.605'W.) At STOP Sign, turn right (Westerly) onto County Rd. 42 into Newboro

Km. 31.2 (44° 39.114'N. 76° 19.058'W.) Back to Newboro Community Hall.
